

Easley Custom Plastics Awarded South Carolina Manufacturer of the Year

The 2005 Manufacturer of the Year awards are sponsored by the South Carolina Chamber of Commerce in recognition of the enormous impact that successful manufacturing companies have on the South Carolina economy. In consideration of possible recipients for the award, the Chamber examines the overall performance of the company, including the work culture as well as local community involvement. “The only way this type of recognition is achieved is through the combined efforts of all the Associates at ECP”, said Craig Homan, CEO, who accepted the award on behalf of the company.

The award ceremony was held at the Embassy Suites in Columbia, SC on Tuesday evening, September 20th, 2005. The event was attended by approximately three hundred manufacturing professionals, representing a diverse mix of industries. There were ten finalist companies and from that group, four winners were selected based upon size of operation. “In looking over the competition for this award, ECP was in good company and certainly honored to be singled out in the small manufacturing category” said Homan.

The history of this award goes back to 1997 and some notable past winners have been Bowater Inc., Bridgestone/Firestone of South Carolina, Milliken, and Southern Vinyl Window Manufacturing.

Based in Easley, South Carolina, the company provides innovative engineering services and custom injection molded plastic components to a variety of industries and market segments which include: building products, automotive, heavy trucking and power tools. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of CH Industries, Inc. and has established a solid customer base with an outstanding industry reputation over the past 36 years.
